6 Program Overview

25 AGRF Virtual Summit 2020 Partner Profiles
Africa’s cities and food markets are rapidly expanding. These vibrant hubs comprise an ever-growing number of consumers, diversity of incomes, diversity in diets, and diversity in demand for food. The food systems that will feed 1 billion people in African cities by 2040 need to be fueled by nutritious diets that are accessible to people with a wide array of incomes.

Despite significant economic growth in Africa, as many as half of Africans, 676 million people, live in moderate food insecurity where they do not have enough to eat at certain meals and occasionally go hungry. Paradoxically, obesity is rising and with it the pressing issues of health care. Add to that the impacts of climate change, and COVID-19, and food systems have been thoroughly challenged.

Now is the moment to build back better. We need a change to our food systems if African farmers and consumers are both to benefit, all people are going to increase access to quality, affordable, and nutritious food, and agricultural growth is to drive sustained, inclusive economic growth with more jobs for Africa’s women and youth.

The AGRF Virtual Summit 2020 will focus on a new resilient future that better joins the continent via trade and supply chains that help Africans feed Africans. Linking African rural development to Africa’s burgeoning cities is the way to grow the continent.

Build Back Better

Under the leadership of H.E. Paul Kagame, President of the Republic of Rwanda, the AGRF Virtual Summit 2020 will convene thought-leaders to chart a new course to deliver the objectives of the Malabo Declaration, the African Union Agenda 2063, and the UN SDGs. Stakeholders from across the continent and around the globe will work together for change.

➤ Markets and trade
Build an inter-connected African markets that create opportunities, right from rural smallholders to urban supermarkets.

➤ Nutritious food
Create demand for Africa products that fuel diverse, healthy diets with the safety and quality every consumer needs.

➤ Resilience
Invest in enterprises and innovations to build a more sustainable and inclusive future.

➤ Food Systems
Define the food systems Africa wants and be part of a multi-stakeholder vision for Africa and the world on the future of food.

When Africa feeds its cities, it grows the continent.

The African Fertilizer and Agribusiness Partnership

Established in 2013, initially as a special initiative of the Alliance for a Green Revolution in Africa, the African Fertilizer and Agribusiness Partnership (AFAP) is a non-governmental organization with its headquarters in South Africa. AFAP works with private businesses to establish more competitive and sustainable fertilizer markets in Africa and to contribute to an African Green Revolution. Using an innovative partnership contract, AFAP joins industry and development interests to inspire productivity, food security and prosperity in Africa.

Alliance for a Green Revolution

Established in 2006 and headquartered in Nairobi, Kenya, the Alliance for a Green Revolution in Africa (AGRA) was founded through a partnership between the Rockefeller Foundation and the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation. Today however, AGRA’s donor base has since expanded to include governments as well as other international organizations. AGRA works across the continent to help millions of smallholder farmers to boost their farm productivity and incomes. To date, AGRA has supported hundreds of projects, including efforts to develop and deliver better seeds, increase farm yields, improve soil fertility, upgrade storage facilities, improve market information systems, strengthen farmers’ associations, expand access to credit for farmers and small suppliers, and advocate for national policies that benefit smallholder farmers. AGRA aims to play a central role in transforming the agricultural sector in Africa and its food system.

In support of the African Green Revolution Forum (AGRF), AGRA hosts the Secretariat and takes a lead role in facilitating the development of the annual theme of the conference and coordinating the work of the Thematic Working Groups.
The African Union

The African Union is a continental union consisting of all 55 countries on the African continent. It was established in 2001 in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, and launched in July 2002 in South Africa with the aim of replacing the Organization of African Unity (OAU). The most important decisions of the African Union (AU) are made by the Assembly of the African Union, a semi-annual meeting of the Heads of State and Government of its member states. The AU's executive/administrative branch or secretariat, the African Union Commission (AUC), is based in Addis Ababa and is made up of portfolios named Departments and consist of; Peace and Security; Political Affairs; Trade and Industry; Infrastructure and Energy; Social Affairs; Rural Economy and Agriculture; Human Resources, Science and Technology; and Economic Affairs. The Department of Rural Economy and Agriculture (DREA), in collaboration with NEPAD Planning and Coordinating Agency, Regional Economic Communities (RECs) and Member States, is mandated to work with African institutions, civil society, private sector and development partners to support the implementation of AU decisions related to the development of the agricultural sector, rural economies and the environment in order to improve the livelihoods of African people and ensure food security and sound environmental management. It was established with the objective of promoting agricultural and rural development; and, strives to boost AU Member states’ rural economy development and agricultural productivity by supporting the adoption of measures, strategies, policies and programmes on agriculture.

To reflect this and yet retain our roots we have kept CGIAR as our name.

CGIAR research is dedicated to reducing rural poverty, increasing food security, improving human health and nutrition, and ensuring more sustainable management of natural resources. It is carried out by 15 Centers, that are members of the CGIAR Consortium, in close collaboration with hundreds of partner organizations, including national and regional research institutes, civil society organizations, academia, and the private sector.

The 15 Research Centers generate and disseminate knowledge, technologies, and policies for agricultural development through the CGIAR Research Programs. The CGIAR Fund provides reliable and predictable multi-year funding to enable research planning over the long term, resource allocation based on agreed priorities, and the timely and predictable disbursement of funds. The multi-donor trust fund finances research carried out by the Centers through the CGIAR Research Programs.

The CGIAR has almost 10,000 scientists and staff, unparalleled research infrastructure and dynamic networks across the globe. Its collections of genetic resources are the most comprehensive in the world.

The International Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD) is a specialized agency of the United Nations that was established as an international financial institution in 1977 as one of the major outcomes of the 1974 World Food Conference. IFAD is dedicated to eradicating rural poverty in developing countries. Working with rural poor people, governments, donors, non-governmental organizations and many other partners, IFAD focuses on country-specific solutions, which can involve increasing rural poor peoples’ access to financial services, markets, technology, land and other natural resources.

Through low-interest loans and grants, IFAD works with governments to develop and finance programmes and projects that enable rural poor people to overcome poverty themselves. Since starting operations in 1978, IFAD has invested US$12.0 billion in 860 projects and programmes that have reached some 370 million poor rural people. Governments and other financing sources in recipient countries, including project participants, contributed US$10.8 billion, and multilateral, bilateral and other donors provided approximately another US$8.8 billion in co-financing. This represents a total investment of about US$19.6 billion.

IFAD tackles poverty not only as a lender, but also as an advocate for rural poor people. Its multilateral base provides a natural global platform to discuss important policy issues that influence the lives of rural poor people, as well as to draw attention to the centrality of rural development to meeting the Millennium Development Goals.

IFAD has designed and implemented projects in very different natural, socio-economic and cultural environments. Many IFAD-supported programmes have been in remote areas. In addition, its local-level operations in more than 100 countries and territories keep IFAD in continuous and direct contact with the rural poor. To build broad local ownership of the programmes it sponsors, IFAD works in partnership with others – borrowing-country governments, poor rural people and their organizations, and other donor agencies. Its focus on local development has given it a role in bridging the gap between multilateral and bilateral donors on the one side, and civil society represented by NGOs and community-based organizations (CBOs) on the other.
